

Hello to all

I am amazed to think that the FCC would even consider this as it HAS been proven to make interference to the radio spectrum. They say it will not, but I have seen the reports and heard from others that have seen it in action. I also believe if it put in place and proven to be flawed the power companies will NOT fix it as they will duck the issue as they have done in the past.

Please do not let this go in effect as I fear it will be a problem that YOU (the FCC) will never fix.
